LIMITS OF CONFIDENTIALITY

Client Rights, Privacy Protections & Mandatory Reporting Exceptions

FOUNDATION OF CONFIDENTIALITY: Your privacy and trust are paramount to effective therapy. All Protected Health Information (PHI) shared with Compassionate Care Counseling is kept strictly confidential and will not be disclosed to any outside person or institution without your signed, written authorization, except as directly necessary for treatment coordination, payment collection, or healthcare operations.

MANDATORY REPORTING

Abuse or Neglect

Providers are legally obligated to report any reasonable suspicion or disclosure of abuse or neglect involving a child, elderly person, or disabled individual.

SAFETY INTERVENTION

Harm to Self or Others

Confidentiality must be broken if there is clear, imminent risk of physical injury or harm to yourself or an identified third party to initiate safety precautions.

URGENT CARE

Medical Emergencies

In the event of an acute, life-threatening medical emergency during session, essential information may be disclosed to emergency medical responders.

CLINICAL INTEGRITY

Care Coordination

Information is shared strictly in accordance with practice privacy policies for treatment continuity, healthcare operations, or when mandated by law.

DIGITAL BOUNDARIES & PROFESSIONAL SOCIAL MEDIA POLICY

Social Media & Ethical Standards: In accordance with the NASW Code of Ethics, our clinicians maintain strict professional boundaries to protect your confidentiality and the integrity of the therapeutic relationship. Clinicians are strictly prohibited from initiating, accepting, or maintaining personal friend or connection requests with clients across social media platforms before, during, or after treatment.

Digital Privacy Advisory: If you choose to follow or publicly interact with practice-affiliated professional accounts, you acknowledge that third-party platforms pose inherent privacy risks outside our control, which may inadvertently compromise your personal confidentiality.
